

Using dots instead of bars creates less ink, redundancy, and clutter. This also makes it easier to combine multiple forms of information and compare the difference between the values.

A dot plot is judged by position along the horizontal axis. Length is not an issue with dot plots as they commonly are with bar charts